Anti-German Demonstrations in England—Belgian Army Again Makes Its Presence Felt—Austrians Claim Slaughter of 40,000 Russians—French Fleet Busy.

By Associated Press.

London, October 19.—From the point of view of the allied armies, the situation in West Flanders, and in France as far south as Lille, seemed on this, the 77th day of the war, perhaps more hopeful than at any time since the German advance on Paris was checked. All tidings seemed to indicate that the German advance from Ostend on the French coast towns has been blocked temporarily. The invaders have been again compelled to give ground before the allied force near Lille. Several reports contend that the Germans have withdrawn from this town and that the German army operating along the coast of Flanders found itself in peril of being cut off from the main body.

All reports seem to agree that the city of Ostend is practically clear of Germans and that they now propose to hammer on toward Dunkirk and Calais. One report says that they are beyond Furnes, less than ten miles from Dunkirk. Further south in France reinforcements from Brussels are said to have been brought up before Lille, which the Germans are reported as bombarding in a desperate attempt to retake the place.

The Belgians, according to reports have held the Germans in an attempt to cross the river Yser, southwest of Dixmude, Belgium. This was the first heard of the Belgian forces since the evacuation of Antwerp. King Albert, unheard of for some time, is said to be in the field.

From various sources came reports that some sort of naval craft are being pressed into use by the allies in the canals of Flanders and perhaps from the sea.

In the eastern war area the great battle of Poland appears to be progressing in favor of the Russians.

Around Przemyśl the Austrians claim to have killed and wounded 40,000 Russians and also to have crossed the Carpathians, but, on the other hand, the Russians repulsed an Austrian attempt to cross the river San. That the Austrians are meeting with vigorous opposition is admitted in the latest Vienna dispatch, which says that "our troops are advancing as against a fortress."

Paris, October 19.—An uninterrupted offensive movement by the allies at certain points in northern France was predicted here today as the battle was resumed. The retaking of Armentieres, on the river Lys on the Belgian frontier, and the occupation, ten miles west of Lille, of the right line leading towards Douai, was considered as constituting an excellent advance guard position by reason of its numerous places of support. This with the progress in several other sections notably Arras, gave the allies hope of a continuance of their advance.

Lieutenant Colonel Rousset, the military critic, in reviewing the situation refuses to concur in the statement made that the battle of the Aisne has been definitely won by the allies.

The socialists of France have declared as premature the suggestions made that Socialists in the United States hold an international Socialist peace congress.

The public was greatly pleased that Sunday passed without a visit from German aeroplanes.

London, October 19.—By reaching their tenacles out to the seaboard the allied forces have established close contact with the British navy, which is now in the extreme left of the line and seems, for the moment, to block effectually a further German effort to turn this wing. If, as the allies claim, their left can not now be turned, the only alternative left the Germans is to hack away through the trio of armies confronting them and it is believed the German right seems in no way loath to make the attempt.

The British official information bureau says that the allies in the northern area have driven the Germans back more than 30 miles. The precise locality of this advance and retreat is not indicated, but it could have been only at some point on this western wing, where the Germans are trying to resume their interrupted dash on Paris by way of the coast towns.

This afternoon's official French statement says that the German artillery has attacked without success "the front to the east of Dixmude." The allies, it adds, have advanced as far as Roulers and there has been sharp fighting on a front from La Basse to Albain and St. Nazaire. Paris states that the allies are moving on Lille which was occupied by the Germans on October 13.

Rains that caused much suffering to the troops in France earlier in the campaign are falling again on the battlefield so continuously that great hardships result to the men and military maneuvers are made more difficult.

Nothing is known definitely of the fate of Przemyśl, in Galicia, but the best information is that it is still holding out against the Russians. Vienna asserts that the siege of the city has failed.

The Turkish government has refused the British demand that the German crews be discharged from the cruisers, Goeben and Breslau, which Turkey bought from Germany.

Though there was a scattered recurrence of the anti-German rioting in parts of London early this morning, police protection in such places has been increased and no serious outbreaks were reported during the forenoon in the city, but at Saffron-Walden, in Essex, and English lawyer's house was attacked and the window smashed because it was said he had been harboring two Germans.

In the continuation of the rioting at Deptford last night a German grain dealer's house and store were wrecked and fired. More than 30 prisoners were arraigned in the Greenwich police court today on charges growing out of the anti-German demonstration and rioting in Deptford.

Columbus, O., October 19.—Another move in his fight against the Standard Oil Company was made by George H. He says it is controlled by the Standard Oil Company. The Imperial Company is capitalized at $15,000,000.

ROUMANIA'S NEW KING, ONCE GERMAN OFFICER, MAY AID THE KAISER.

King Ferdinand of Roumania, who has just ascended the throne following the death of his uncle, King Charles, was born in 1865. He was educated in Germany. He studied in Potsdam and was an officer in the German army. It has been rumored he may aid the Kaiser in the present war. He achieved considerable publicity before his marriage through a love affair with Mile. Helene Vacaresco, a favorite of the queen of Roumania. When a marriage with Princess Marie, daughter of Alfred, Duke of Edinburgh and later Duke of Saxe-Coburg, was talked of it was said that the queen of Roumania was much incensed. Mile. Vacaresco felt the matter so keenly that she sent Ferdinand's love letters to the Princess Marie, it was said. Nevertheless the marriage between Ferdinand and Princess Marie took place in January, 1892. At the time Ferdinand was twenty-six years old and his bride only seventeen. There are five children.

BAILEY MURDER TRIAL UNDER WAY

Noted Case Reopened This Morning When Mrs. Florence Conklin Carman of Freeport N. Y., is Placed On Trial For Murdering Mrs. Louise Bailey, June 30th—Exciting Scramble to Get into Tiny Court Room.

By Associated Press.

Mineola, New York, October 19.—Mrs. Florence Conklin Carman, of Freeport, was placed on trial today for murder. She was charged with slaying Mrs. Louise Bailey, of Hempstead, on the night of June 30, last, while Mrs. Bailey was in the office of Dr. Edwin Carman, the defendant's husband, whither she had gone for medical advice.

Contrary to forecast the case progressed swiftly and smoothly during its opening hours. Within twenty minutes the first juror was selected. At noon five were there. The 113 talesmen, it was believed, would be more than adequate for the jury. A throng of men and women stormed the court house in a futile effort to obtain seats in the tiny court room. Few were admitted.

Mrs. Carman appeared to be self-possessed, but became increasingly nervous as the proceedings progressed. She whispered often to her husband and counsel during the selection of the jury. William Bailey, whose wife was the victim, sat within ten feet of her, but apparently she did not see him. Several talesmen were excused because they said Dr.

Carman had professionally attended them or members of their family. Others were excused upon announcing that they were opposed to capital punishment.

Before leaving her cell to enter the court room, Mrs. Carman handed many trinkets to the matron and requested that they be distributed among the other prisoners. The men and women in the jail shouted "good luck" as she passed their cells. One woman thrust her hand through the bars of her cell door and gave Mrs. Carman a metal swastika.

She was dressed in the blue tailor-made suit that she wore, when she appeared at the inquest in Freeport. From beneath a stylish Parisian hat with a white feather, peeped stray locks of her blonde hair, marcelled with painstaking care. Her appearance was almost the same as when she was arrested; she looked as though she might have stepped into the court room from a stroll on Fifth avenue.

The defendant grew nervous as the examination of the talesmen progressed. She watched intently the face of each man called. Occasionally she glanced at her husband, sitting beside her, and smiled.

German Advance Along the Seacoast Reported Blocked.

BOTH SIDES BADLY PUNISHED

Atties Recapture Armentieres, Driving the Enemy Northeastward From Three to Five Miles—Germans' New Plan Calls For Advance on Paris Through Northern France. Notable Progress Made by Joffre.

BULLETIN.

Rotterdam, Oct. 19.—A message just received from a German source reports that the Germans are between Furnes and Dunkirk and are nearing the latter place. Heavy firing has been heard at Dunkirk. It is supposed that destroyers or gunboats are being used in the canals.

Paris, Oct. 19.—The features of the official news are that the allies have recaptured Armentieres, driving the Germans northeastward from three to five miles, and that the little army of Belgium, now the extreme left of the allied line, is standing at Nieuport, braving a powerful German advance toward Dunkirk, France.

The Belgians, severely punished, but always in the thick of fighting, prevented the Germans from crossing the river Yser. The Germans are in great force, 400 guns, 40,000 infantry and some cavalry having been rushed from Ostend to the Yser on Saturday.

While King Albert's army, with support from a new British army and from French marines and detachments from General Joffre's line in France, checked the German advances along the seacoast, the left wing of the allies in northern France made notable progress, delivering a series of blows against Von Boehm and Von Kluck, which forced the Germans to surrender Armentieres and villages to the south. General Joffre, according to official reports, has driven the German right wing about nineteen miles to the northeast in the past four days.

These successes, slowly gained, have so straightened the allied line that it now runs practically north and south from Nieuport and Ypres in Belgium to Armentieres, Arras, Albert, Roye and Lassigny.

Information strengthens the impression formed on previous days.

MAYTORENA EXECUTES PRISONERS

General Maytorena Strikes Terror Among Yaquis.

Naco, Ariz., Oct. 19.—Washington gave permission to bring the wounded Constitutional soldiers to this side of the line for treatment. About 225 of the defenders of the town of Naco, Sonora, have been brought to Naco, Ariz., and placed in an improvised hospital in the opera house. Local doctors and doctors from Bisbee and Douglas came to attend them.

General Hill's execution of all prisoners has struck terror among the Yaquis. His men declared that over 100 have been executed by the Hill troops. No prisoners, wounded or otherwise, have been held. Not a man among the 225 brought to the American side was a Yaqui. Maytorena declared that he was not beaten, but admitted that he needed more ammunition.

In the firing Sunday a bullet from the Yaqui lines struck a lamp in the home of W. L. Humphrey in Naco, Ariz., and started a fire that consumed and residence and another residence and lodging house.

Colonel Watterson spent more than an hour with the president, chatting about things generally and telling stories, and when he came away he was beaming as brightly as the sun in the October sky.

SEA MINES IN WARFARE.

The Result When a Vessel Strikes One of These Deadly Engines.

To merchantmen, to the smaller and older warships—to everything that floats except the very highest and more recent products of the shipbuilder's art—the mine presents the danger of complete and almost instant annihilation. The rigidity of the ship is in itself an element of danger, for the water surrounding it is incompressible.

If the skin and frame could give way without rupture and permit the enormously expanding gases (2,000 times the volume of the solid explosive) to transmit their energy in such a way as simply to push the ship aside and thus find a way to the surface, the damage might be slight.

But this cannot be. There is no such elasticity available. And the expansion is so nearly instantaneous that pushing the ship aside is physically impossible. Therefore the structure must break, releasing the gases first into the interior and then by lines of least resistance finally up into the air.

This action is completely instantaneous. It blows off hatch covers and deck plates, twists massive steel members into unrecognizable shapes, spreads havoc broadcast. It transmutes a proud ship into a sinking mass of wreckage—a happy passenger afloat into a shambles—carries mourning into a hundred homes. Such is the effect of mines.—Sidney Graves Koon in Leslie's.

New Bank President

In choosing Mr. M. S. Daugherty, cashier of the Midland National bank, as president of The Commercial bank, to succeed the late A. S. Ballard, the directors of that financial institution have bestowed a great compliment indeed upon Mr. Daugherty.

That the compliment is a deserved one is attested by Mr. Daugherty's record in the business, especially his identification with the financial interests of Washington.

During all of the time since he attained his majority, Mr. Daugherty has been one of the most prominent men of this community in financial circles. He knows the banking business from the most minor position to the highest position, enough in the journey from bottom to top, in each position, to thoroughly master that position in all its details.

In addition to all that Mr. Daugherty knows the people of this community and they know him, which, added to his other qualifications makes his selection an ideal one for the bank.

The new president of the Commercial Bank was born and raised in this city, beginning the banking business, like his predecessor, as an employee of the old Merchants' and Farmers' bank.

The Commercial bank began its existence thirty-seven years ago and the late Morris Sharp, A. S. Ballard and Mr. Daugherty constituted its entire working force. The fact that both of the younger of the three men who organized the Commercial bank should live to attain the presidency of the institution is a remarkable evidence of worth and stability, a high testimonial to the integrity and entire fitness of the three founders of the bank.

It is interesting to note that Mr. Daugherty, while in the very prime of active life at this time is the only surviving male member of the original partnership, and one of only two of the original partners still alive.

The remorseless turn of the hands on time's great dial brings many changes and it is rare indeed that such a succession of complimentary advances in business of trust and confidence are recorded in the business life of a small community as the life record of Mr. Daugherty in the financial circles of this city shows.

To be chosen president of a powerful financial institution while acting as cashier of another, is indeed an honor of which Mr. Daugherty and his friends have just cause to be proud.

The Small Debtor's Court

The state of Kansas once more comes to the front in a work of practical justice and charity, the real charity which is quite different from the "hand out" to the beggar, in the establishment of what is known as the "Small Debtors' Court."

This court provides for the settlement of claims not to exceed twenty dollars, to secure justice for the poorer citizens, those unable to hire lawyers or pay court costs.

Claims as low as 20 cents have been settled in this court and one little "newsie" who had a claim of 45 cents is eternally grateful to Judge W. H. Kenoper, of Topeka, Kan., who serves without pay.

The court in Topeka has been in operation for a year and during that time 378 cases were filed and 50 more settled by the judge without formality.

The small debtors' court where ever it has been established in various cities of Kansas, is said to have been so successful that it is proposed to raise the maximum on labor claims within its jurisdiction from twenty dollars to fifty dollars. It is a court which protects the wage earner and insures justice without the spending of money to get it. It also tends to do away with the "dead beat", who can no longer disregard small accounts in the comfortable security that the sum is too little to be worth taking into court.

The small debtors' court is absolutely free from legal red tape. The judge serves without pay; there are no court costs, nor is either side in litigation represented by an attorney.

The judge hears the facts and announces his decision in a simple, non-technical manner. It is a court most helpful to poor citizens, who have often been prevented from obtaining simple justice by the fear of court costs.

Poetry For Today

HERO HANK.

When you're down on your luck and feeling fit
For the hospital or the grave,
Just think of a chap who wouldn't quit,
Hank Gowdy, the Boston Brave.

"Take him away," said John McGraw,

When he saw a lanky kid
Who lumbered around behind the plate

And stumbled and fell and slid
Till the scene was crowded with arms and legs,

And Gowdy's sorrel thatch.
"Take him away from New York town

That egg'll never hatch."
So they told big Hank

He was only a blank
And they tied a can to him.

"He can't run or think"
Was writ in ink
In the manager's verdict grim.

They gave him away to the Boston Braves

'Twas half way to the "Sticks,"
"What is he good for?" Stallings asked;

And McGraw said, "Good for nix."
"I'm shy on lumber," mused Boston's chief,

"And I'll use him for a while."
Then his keen eyes saw what John McGraw

Couldn't fathom, Gowdy's smile,
The smile of a man you couldn't can,

A smile that knows no quit,
"By the great bull's hide,"
Said Georgia's pride,
"I'll build on that lad's grit."

What happened then we all know now;

They chummed, these men of might
And the way that Gowdy picked up tricks

Was his boss' keen delight.
His thews were toughened, his battling eye

Grew keen as a hawk's, and then
The great World's Series rolled around

For Stallings and his men.
It was five to two

Against Boston's crew
Till Hank and his mighty ash
Wrecked all the dope

And our last fond hope
For championship and cash.

Of fans there's a file to reach a mile
Who'd battle to shake the mit

Of the chap worth while with nifty smile,
The redhead that wouldn't quit.

BOWSER NEARS THE GRAVE

But Is Drawn Back by an Electric Battery

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1914, by Associated Literary Press

When Mr. Bowser left the office he had under his arm a snug package that he had purchased during the day, and he handled it with loving care.

He began as soon as seated in the car to work up a doleful expression of countenance, and he succeeded so well that a motherly woman turned to him and asked:

"Are you a man of family, sir?"

"Yes'm."

"Then you have your wife make you some catnip tea as soon as you get home."

And a man across the aisle almost shouted out:

"Catnip tea for him? Why, it's got to be something stronger than that! He was out playing poker last night and lost $7. Don't I know the signs?"

However, there was a pretty fair look of "I am bound for the grave" on his face as he reached home, and he sighed like a tired horse as he climbed the steps. To his great astonishment Mrs. Bowser ignored both the look and the sigh and continued to treat him during the dinner hour like one who had 150 years of life before him. When they went up to the sitting room he neither read nor smoked, but prowled around until she took pity on him and asked:

"Have you got some worry on your mind this evening?"

"Some folks might call it worry," he replied.

"Well, let's hear it."

"It's that I've had my blood tested today by a doctor who happened to drop into my office, and it was a good thing I did. Another week and it might have been too late."

"Too late for what?" queried Mrs. Bowser.

"Too late to save my life. That is, I should have had to go to the hospital and be operated on for cancer of the stomach. I just caught it in time."

"It was very lucky that some quack came in with something to sell."

"Quack, quack!" shouted Mr. Bowser as he jumped up and got mad in a breath. "That's you exactly. You can't be happy unless you are ringing in something about quacks and fads and fakers about once a week. It has got so that I dread to even tell you that I've got a corn on my toe or a cold in the head. If you are ailing I can't sleep for my anxiety, but if you knew that I was standing on the verge of the grave you'd fling out some insult or other."

"Well, you had your blood tested," she quietly answered.

"Yes, I did. You know how I've been run down for the last year, and I wanted to know just what ailed me. It didn't take the doctor over five minutes to find that my system needed electricity. For the want of electricity my blood is turning into water."

"And so you have bought a battery, of course."

"Yes, I've bought a battery."

"Of the doctor who found your blood was turning to water?"

"Why not? He happened to have one with him, and why shouldn't I buy it?"

"No reason at all, my dear. I suppose it is on the hall tree and that you intend taking a treatment right away? I think you had better. I once knew a man whose blood turned to water and he went insane and died. I have heard that electricity restored youth. Perhaps it will work that way in your case."

Mr. Bowser looked at her for a long minute without being able to make up his mind whether she was geying or in earnest, but being unable to detect a smile on her face he finally brought in his battery. It was a simple affair, which was set in operation by a spring, and he soon had it in working order. When the current began making itself felt in his hands and arms he grew good natured and blandly said:

"This is worth all the medicine I could pour down my throat in a year! Our family doctor has been dosing and dosing me for months without avail because he didn't know what ailed me."

It never occurred to him to test my blood. Ah, um! Say, that does me good!"

"I suppose it restores certain lost properties to the blood?" eagerly observed Mrs. Bowser.

"That's what it does. What my blood lacks is phosphates. You must fertilize the blood the same as you would the soil. By George, but I feel it clear up to my ears! I honestly believe that one single treatment will carry me back fifteen or twenty years. You know that when Piny was eighty years old he used electricity and joined a football club."

"I never heard of it, but I hope it will affect you favorably. I have noticed lately that you dragged your legs in going upstairs."

"Well, there will be no more dragging after tonight. On the contrary, I'll be bounding up four steps at a time. When I get through you'd better take a treatment. There's nothing like taking time by the forelock. The subtle fluid has not been permeating my system above five minutes, and yet I feel as if I could jump over a six rail fence."

For the next three minutes Mr. Bowser leaned back and closed his eyes and had a lamblike look on his face. Then the monotonous whirr of the battery suddenly changed to a series of gasps as if for breath, and he straightened up with a yell and began to beat his heels on the floor.

"What on earth's the matter?" exclaimed Mrs. Bowser as she reached over and turned the spring to shut the current off.

"The blamed thing got away somehow!" he gasped as he let the handles fall. "The doctor said something about induction, and I guess that was it. Perhaps I've got enough in my arms. For a few seconds I thought it would pull every tooth out of my head. Say, now, but before I try it on my legs I'll experiment a little on the cat."

"But you may scare her to death!"

"She won't scare for a cent. Say, it will be a good thing for her. She's been growing lean and scrawny for the last month, and electricity may be just what she needs. Her blood may need phosphates as well as mine. Is the cook home?"

"Yes, but don't you go experimenting on her. If she got a shock she'd bring a lawsuit for damages."

"And why don't you try it?"

"Because I don't need it. If that thing runs away again it may tie you up in knots. It was lucky I happened to be here to turn the spring."

"Well, we'll see how it will work on the cat. Even if her blood is not impoverished she needs toning up. Come here, pussy."

The family cat came over to him without hesitation, and as she reached his feet he started the battery and clapped a sponge to each of her sides. For about thirty seconds the cat humped her back, rolled her eyes and wondered over the new sensation. Then she seemed to get the idea that she was being attacked by other cats and that it was to be a fight for her life. Her first spring carried her on Mr. Bowser's knees and the next to the top of his head, and the sudden attack rolled him out of his chair upon the floor. He yelled, and the cat squealed. He pounced at her and she clawed. The fight was over in a minute, with the cat shooting upstairs to hide under the bed, but in those sixty seconds Mr. Bowser had received a dozen bites and a score of scratches. He scrambled up with the blood flowing from his wounds and his dignity all torn up the back, and his first act was to dash the battery to the floor and jump on it with both feet. His next was to yell at Mrs. Bowser:

"Woman, I'll wreck this house from cellar to garret! You knew all the time!"

But Mrs. Bowser wasn't there. She had followed the cat upstairs. His first thought was to rush after her, but as he reached the stairs he paused with a new idea. Murder would not satisfy his thirst.

"Woman, hear me!" he called. "Tomorrow morning—my lawyer—your lawyer—divorce—no alimony, and you and your blamed old cat may starve in the streets and die in the poorhouse!"

Of course.

"Would you call theirs a eugenic marriage?"

"I think so. I understand he has a healthy income."—Detroit Free Press.

SEE GRAVE DANGER IN INCOMPLETED STREET

Fearing Failure of City to Complete Roadway Across Bottoms in Northern Part of City May Hurl Flood Waters Through Their Plant, Willis Lumber Company is to Notify City That It Will be Held Responsible For Damages.

The failure of the city, through council, to construct the necessary fill and roadway from the bridge on the Western avenue extension to Millikan avenue at a point near where the avenue is crossed by the D. T. & I. and C. H. & D. railroads, may result in suit being filed against the city should a flood of any great proportions result before the grade is constructed, which it is claimed, will not be before next spring or summer.

The bridge over Paint creek, for the new road, was constructed last spring, it will be recalled, and the abutments were constructed several months prior to the erection of the superstructure of the bridge. The commissioners then constructed the approaches to the bridge, leaving the city to build its part of the thoroughfare.

A few weeks ago the roadbed, which is many feet above the surrounding bottom lands, was completed from the bridge to North street, and it was then announced that no further building would take place until next spring, when it is planned to cut down North North street and improve it, and use the earth to build the roadbed west of the bridge and across the remainder of the flood plain of the creek.

With half of roadway constructed, thus forming an obstruction which would hurl the great overflow volume of flood water to the west of the bridge, the Willis Lumber Company beholds great danger to its mill and lumber yards, and will, it is announced, file formal notice to the city council that the city will be held responsible for any damage that may result to the company through neglect of the city to construct the roadway and thus prevent the flood waters from being hurled across the bottoms and damaging the company's yards.

It is feared that in case of flood the water would be forced westward in such volumes that it would cut a new channel, eat its way through Millikan avenue, and then sweep down through the yards, perhaps, cutting a new channel directly through where the yards are now located, and damaging the company heavily. A loss of several hundred thousands of dollars might thus be inflicted to the company.

According to a member of the Willis Lumber Company, this notice is to be formally served upon the city at an early meeting.

CELEBRATES 67TH BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

Despite the continuous down-pour of rain Thursday, quite a number responded to the invitations at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Flint on Highland avenue. The affair was in honor of Mrs. Flint's 67th birthday.

The table was laden down with everything the season affords. Dahlias and ferns made pretty decorations.

Those present were: Rev. O. L. Ferguson, wife and sons, Paul, Roy and Everett, Mrs. G. F. Four and little grandsons, Sherman and Lloyd Cook, of Gregg street; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Younken, of Williamsport; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cox and children, Otha Owen, Hazel and Ethel, of Mt. Sterling; Mrs. Mina Cox and daughter, Dorothy, of Columbus, and Mrs. Ella Morgan, of Boswell, Indiana.

Late in the afternoon the guests departed for their respective homes, wishing Mrs. Flint many more happy birthdays.

POST PROPHECIES DEFEAT FOR COX

The following item bearing the Washington, D. C., date line, was published this morning exclusively in the Commercial Tribune, a Republican newspaper of Cincinnati:

"Cox will be beaten by 100,000 majority," said Representative J. D. Post, Democratic Congressman from Ohio.

"It is easy to see that the drift in Ohio is strongly toward Willis," continued Post. "A newspaper's poll of Hamilton county is a revelation in respect to the large falling off which it shows in Cox's strength. If he loses so much in Hamilton county, where he is supposed to have the best of the wet and dry issue, what will he lose in other parts of the State? It looks to me like Willis has got a walk away in this contest."

HAD MARKED PAGES IN MEDICAL JOURNALS

An examination of the medical books in the office of the late Dr. H. M. Jenkins disclosed that nearly every reference to the brain and injuries of the brain, had been carefully marked by the late owner of the books, indicating that he was constantly worrying over the injury which he had received when a lad of 12 years, and which nearly caused his death at that time.

On Sunday hundreds of friends of the young man called at the family residence to speak words of comfort and pay tribute to the man whom all held in high esteem.

POPULAR TEACHER GOES TO CLEVELAND

Miss Mary Thorpe has resigned her position as teacher of the second grade in the public schools of our city to accept a very flattering offer from the East Cleveland schools, and leaves shortly for Cleveland.

Miss Thorpe has been one of the most successful teachers connected with the Washington schools during the past six years, and her resignation causes sincere regret among both school management and patrons of the schools.

Miss Clara Haines, of Sabina, has been elected by the Board of Education to take Miss Thorpe's grade.

CHURCHES AND SUNDAY SCHOOLS HARD AT WORK

The big opening gun of the dry campaign was fired in this city and county Sunday, when virtually all Sunday schools and church services generally were devoted to the temperance question.

Sunday school superintendents and teachers took up the question, and ministers built their sermons upon it. Rev. A. H. Zechiel spoke in Bloomington Sunday morning, after having addressed a large audience in this city Saturday night. He spoke at Wesley Chapel in the afternoon, and at the Baptist church at night. Dr. Clarence Miller addressed a large audience at the East End Chapel. Rev. Borror, of New Holland, spoke at Grace church in the morning and

Rev. F. M. Clemans, at night. Rev. Bowman Hostetter delivered a strong temperance address at the Christian church. The special services at the Presbyterian church drew large crowds.

At noon Monday a joint meeting was held for employees of the shoe and chair factories. Rev. Zechiel spoke.

Tonight Rev. Zechiel speaks at Jeffersonville, and 20 boys of the local High School Glee club will sing campaign songs.

Tuesday night Rev. Zechiel speaks at Good Hope. Wednesday night Prof. Morgan will speak at Memorial Hall. The public is invited to attend all meetings.

LOCAL MAN IS STABBED

Farmer Attacked in Springfield, Robbed and Stabbed 22 Times, But Will Recover—Conflicting Stories Are Told by Injured Man.

Weak from loss of blood, bearing twenty-two knife stabs, a bruise on the back of his head and over his eye, a man who gave the name of J. P. Lytre told the night watchman at Ansted & Burk's mill last night that he had been robbed of $15. He said his home was about four miles from Washington C. H.

He told conflicting stories of the robbery, asserting at one time that it was done by a colored man, and at other times declaring that his assailant was white. He also said later that he carried no money when he was held up.

At the city hospital it was reported early this morning that the wounds were not deep, and that the man's condition would not prove serious.

Detectives Bargdill and Kerstetter examined him at length but he was unable to tell anything about a fight or where he had been Friday night.—Springfield Sun.

FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE HEADED TOWARD THIS CITY

Monday afternoon the police of this city were warned to be on the lookout for Ray Patton, a young man of Greenfield, who was wanted in Highland county for highway robbery and shooting with intent to kill Frank Armstrong, of Bainbridge, while Armstrong was on the D. T. & I. between Greenfield and Bainbridge Saturday night.

Patton was said to have left Greenfield on a motorcycle, and was last seen headed toward this city. This was shortly after the noon hour, but up to 3:30 the man had not been seen near this city.

It is claimed that Patton held up the man and relieved him of $210, and shot at him when Armstrong resisted. The bullet grazed Armstrong's shoulder.

As soon as Patton learned that he was wanted for the crime, it is alleged that he leaped upon his motorcycle and headed toward this city.

Why the Earth Cannot Explode.
The theory is frequently advanced that planets and even suns sometimes explode and that the earth may some day blow up like a bombshell. No celestial body the size of the earth could possibly explode. If the entire molten interior of our globe could be replaced with nitroglycerin and detonated the explosion would not lift the earth's crust. In other words, if we assume that the crust of the earth is from fifty to a hundred miles in thickness it would require something much more powerful than even nitroglycerin to burst the shell. It is necessary only to do a little figuring to see that the pressure of the earth's crust at a depth of from fifty to a hundred miles far exceeds the pressure exerted by the most powerful high explosive.—Hudson Maxim.

Reckless.
A colored man and his finest girl walked into a drug store. The man bought a one cent picture postcard and a one cent postage stamp. As he started to place the stamp on the postcard the colored woman walked toward the front door.

"Wait a minute, Susie," said the colored man. "I'm not near through." The colored man turned to the clerk and bought a package of chewing gum. As the couple walked out of the drug store the colored man was heard to remark, "There's no limit to me, Susie, when I'm out with you."—Indianapolis News.

Study Spanish.
From the Rio Grande to Cape Horn the western world speaks two Iberian languages, Spanish and Portuguese. These are so closely allied that a man proficient in one finds the other little more than a dialect. Together they give commercial access to 8,000,000 square miles of the most productive territory on earth, territory with which the United States already has a vast and increasing trade and in which this country can become commercially supreme—if it tries. It would seem that the present is a good time for Americans to study Spanish.—Chicago Journal.

Soldiers Die Without a Scratch.
In the official list of casualties published by the German military authorities the remark occurs here and there that no injury has been found on the body of the dead soldier. The general opinion is that such deaths resulted from the effects of the pressure of the air caused by the modern projectiles. Especially the pressure upon the inner organs is said to be fatal.—New York Post.

FIGHTING WILL BE PROLONGED

German Drive Toward Warsaw
Reported Checked.

ARMY ENTRENCHED IN POLAND

Teuton Force of 600,000 Settles Down Behind a Fortified Line Twenty-five Miles West of Warsaw—Austrian Attempt to Cross the San River—Falls—Big Battle Raging South of Przemyel.

London, Oct. 19.—The news from the German-Russian battle front indicates a situation resembling the vast siege operations in northern France.

The battle of the Vistula, the center of fighting in the eastern theater of war, may be compared to the battle of the Oise and Aisne. The Russians having halted a German drive toward Warsaw, a movement nearly as powerful as the German advance toward Paris in August, are attempting to keep the initiative. The Germans in Poland, having "dug themselves in," with the protection of their characteristically fine entrenchments are attempting to take root in Poland.

along a line but twenty-five miles from Warsaw. All indications are that the fighting in this region will be prolonged.

The German force of 600,000 men, according to Russian information, has apparently settled down behind a fortified line. The Russians are striking here and there, using Cossacks effectively. The official statement by the Russian general staff was as follows: "Austrian attempts to cross the San river have failed. South of Przemyel the fighting continues. At several points there were bayonet attacks, in which we captured fifteen Austrian officers and more than 1,000 soldiers. Austrian reinforcements are reported in the passes of the Carpathians."

The Russian operations along the East Prussian frontier do not appear to have been more successful than the German effort to break through the fortified line in eastern France. In Galicia the Russians have met with reverses similar to those of the Germans in northern France at the time of their near approach to Paris. They have been compelled to retreat from a line that was hardly sixty miles from Cracow to a line that follows the river San. Like the Germans in France, the Russians kept their armies intact and are in position to start a new advance toward Cracow, provided they can advance their forces in Poland and increase their effort in East Prussia.

GOVT. REDUCES DUTY ON CEREALS

Rome, Oct. 19.—The government has made an exceptional order reducing by one-half the customs duties on wheat, corn, oats and other cereals. This reduction, which is to be in force for five months, is made with the object of encouraging the importation of those commodities.

THE SINGLE EXCEPTION.

A Talkative Stranger Finds Somebody With Whom His Wife Agrees.

A small, thin, nervous looking but not unpleasant man moved up three seats in the car and sat down beside a portly gentleman who had just laid down his paper.

"Excuse me, sir, but this is a terrible war we're having."

"Terrible."

"Perhaps you've been in England."

"No, sir."

"Reminds me of the unfortunate plight so many of our Americans found themselves in. By Jove, sir, we can't appreciate it. The imagination shudders at such horrid details."

"And this brings me to another subject, about which, sir, I should like your candid opinion, and that is nothing more or less than American diplomacy. When we take our place as the leading world power—"

"Excuse me, sir."

"Why, you don't seem to be interested in my conversation."

The other man glared.

"I'm not, sir!" he roared. "Your conversation doesn't interest me an atom, you don't interest me, and you'll oblige me by keeping your mouth shut. You are a first class idiot."

The small man smiled.

"Never met my wife, have you?" he asked.

"No, sir. Don't know her from Adam. Wouldn't meet her if I could."

"There, sir, is where you make your mistake, for you're the one person in the whole world I have ever known her to agree with."—Life.

A Problem in Etiquette.

A red faced, awkward young man approached an usher at a church wedding the other day and timorously slipped into his hand a package tied with a red ribbon.

"What's this?" asked the usher suspiciously.

"Oh, that's the present for the bride."

"But you shouldn't bring it here, my friend!"

"Shouldn't?" he replied tempestuously. "That's what this ticket in my invitation says. See here!"

The usher's eyes were moist as he read:

"Present at the door."—Judge.

Mean Brute!

"I don't suppose you know that your daughter will soon be twenty years old," remarked Mrs. Gabb. "The dear child grows more and more like me every day."

"Yes," growled Mr. Gabb. "She is a regular photograph of her mother."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE VICTIM.

You know that dame I said I met last summer, that swell millionaire.

The one that always used to get her clothes and hats and shoes in Paris.

Who had a motor and a maid.

And said her poppa was so funny. He always seemed to be afraid.

Some man would wed her for her money?

You know the bluff I said I throwed about my having wads of kale.

And how my two weeks' pay I blowed to help to put across the tale.

And just before I went away I guess, perhaps, that you remember she said she'd set the wedding day.

The twenty-seventh of September.

Well, say, them stories that she tells was all framed up to cop my dough!

She sits inside a cage and sells the tickets at a movie show!

Out fourteen bucks! But never mind. I guess maybe it's worth the trimmin'.

Ten Stick Island.

In the Southwest bay, in the New Hebrides group, there is a small wooded island of considerable height above the sea, although only a few hundred yards in circumference. The story of its acquisition is a curious one. Southwest bay used to be considered a good place for target practice by the British men of war on patrol duty there, and this small inlet was used as a target so frequently that it seemed in danger of being gradually shot away. The chief who owned it protested and wanted compensation. The captain of a man-of-war who understood the natives knew that these claims would be a ceaseless source of blackmail unless they were settled once for all, so he bought the island for the British crown, paying ten sticks of tobacco for it, and every one was satisfied. The place since then has been known as "Ten Stick Island."—London Standard.

WILSON PRAISES WORK OF SOLONS

Makes Appeal For Return of Democratic Congress.

WRITES LETTER TO UNDERWOOD

Reviews at Some Length the Enactments of the Present Congress, Measures He Says Which Will Render the People Permanent Benefit. The Tariff, Cost of Living and the European War.

Washington, Oct. 19.—President Wilson in a letter to Representative Underwood, Democratic leader of the house, makes his appeal to the voters of the nation for the return of a Democratic congress. The president expresses the utmost confidence in the outcome. The nation, he contends, never has failed to sustain a congress and administration that have sought to render it a permanent and disinterested benefit.

"A practical nation is not likely," said the president, referring to the congress, "to reject such a team, full of the spirit of public service, and substitute in the midst of great tasks either a party upon which a deep demoralization has fallen or a party which has not grown to a stature that would warrant its assuming the responsible burdens of the state."

The letter then reviews at some length the enactments of the present congress and explains the failure of the tariff to lower the cost of living by saying the war has prevented active competition from bringing prices "to their normal level again."

The president continues: "The present congress has taken its steps with courage, sincerity and effectiveness. The lobby by which some of the worst features of the old tariff had been maintained was driven away by the mere pitiless turning on of the light. The soil in which combinations had grown was removed lest some of the seeds of monopoly might be found to remain in it. The panic that the friends of privilege had predicted did not follow. Business has already adjusted itself to the new conditions with singular ease and elasticity, because the new conditions are in fact more normal than the old. The revenue lost by the import duties was replaced by an income tax which in part shifted the burden of taxation from the shoulders of every consumer in the country, great or small, to shoulders more certainly able to bear it. Until the war ends and until its effects upon manufacture and commerce have been corrected we shall have to impose additional taxes to make up for the loss of such part of our important duties as the war cuts off by cutting off the imports themselves—a veritable war tax, though we are not at war; for war, and only war, is the cause of it.

Anti-Trust and Currency Acts.

"It is fortunate that the reduction of the duties came first. The import duties collected under the old tariff constituted a much larger proportion of the whole revenue of the government than do the duties under the new. A still larger proportion of the revenue would have been cut off by the war had the old taxes stood, and a larger tax would have been necessary as a consequence.

"With similar purpose and in a like temper the congress has sought in the trade commission bill and in the Clayton bill, to make men in a small way of business as free to succeed as men in a big way, to kill monopoly in the seed. Monopolies are built up by unfair methods of competition, and the new trade commission has power to forbid and prevent unfair competition, whether upon a big scale or upon a little; whether just begun or grown old and formidable."

"By the currency bill we have created a democracy of credit such as has never existed in this country before. For a generation or more we have known and admitted that we had the worst banking and currency system in the world, because the volume of our currency was wholly inelastic. Suffice it here to say that the new system provides a currency which expands as it is needed, and contracts when it is not needed; a currency which comes into existence in response to the call of every man who can show a going business and a concrete basis for extending credit to him, however obscure or prominent he may be, however big or little his business transactions."

Columbus, Oct. 19.—The state liquor licensing board, by order of the governor, sent out notices to local boards in all the 42 wet counties to announce the names of saloonists whose licenses have been renewed, and the recipients of new licenses, within the next eight days, or more than a week before the November election.

Under the license law, the names of licensees need not be announced until Nov. 5, which would be two days after the election. However, the position is taken by the administration that it will no suffer the names of licensees to be withheld until that time for fear that some of the men engaged in the business might feel that their license depended upon their political activity.

RESUME OF THE WORK OF FAYETTE'S FAST PONIES

Well Known Young Turf Writer Gives Summary of What the Local Horses Have Accomplished During Racing Season Just Closing—Anticipates Lively Interest Next Season, With Fayette Horses Rendering Good Account of Themselves.

(By Wood)

Harness horse racing was brought to a close in this part of the country last Saturday afternoon at Lancaster, where the Fairfield county fair folks entertained the trotters and pacers for a two-day session. The wind-up was not a very fitting one, as heavy rainfall during the entire week curtailed the program, and what races did take place were held between showers.

The scheduled two-day meeting at Leesburg did not come off, rain interfering to such an extent that it was impossible to race. The track at this point is a new one and hold water so that it is impossible to dry without plenty of sunshine.

A two weeks' meeting opens at Rockport on Tuesday, and the entry list only shows one Fayette Co. horse—Kate McKinney, the classy pacer owned by Andy Kline—while Oscar Vallery has entered Florence McKinney in the 2:09 pace and Royal Cadet in the 2:16 trot. These three horses stand a good chance of winning, as each looks to have class over the other contestants.

The racing season for 1914 has been a brilliant one in many respects. Never before has such a large number of new records come to the harness nags in one season. While it seems that the Grand Circuit is on the wane the half-mile tracks which interest us the most, have been patronized with excellent fields while the support given by the public has been better than ever. There is little doubt but what harness racing is the greatest of all sports if conducted properly. It is truly the "sport of kings," and men and women alike love the thrills furnished by the equines.

There are a number of distasteful things at the usual small race meeting that injure the sport, but it seems that officials have begun to realize this important connection, and there has been a strong effort to eliminate some of the evils that tear down rather than build up. Horsemen, too, have also reached the conclusion that they alone are responsible for many of the unpleasant things which have been the cause of a falling off in the game. The outlook for another year is exceedingly bright, and as a larger number of promising trotters and pacers are changing hands at excellent prices there is no reason to think that another year will not find the sport in a very flourishing condition.

As usual, it was up to either Fayette county owned or bred horses to furnish a large part of the entertainment. While this year has not been productive of sensationalism on the part of any one particular performer the majority have been successful in winning a share of the money. Major Mallows, Glenwood Ms, Taylor Sturgeons, etc., are few, or in other words exceptions rather than the rule.

It is best to pay homage to local products before those who were owned or bred here are brought in for their share of praise. Tony Burns, the bay son of Bobby Burns, campaigned in the Michigan short ship and Ohio racing circuits by Wert Mallow, probably made the best showing of any pacer owned in this vicinity. He secured a record of 2:14 1/4 and as he raced in the best of company he is given preference. Homer S. 2:15 1/4, owned by Charles Sheridan, showed pretty fair in late starts and looks like a coming pacer.

Jessie J., the gray daughter of Wallace McKinney 2:26 1/4, showed in 2:07 on a mile track, but she wrenched her hip at Lexington and went lame but it is said she is coming around alright and will be ready for big game next year. Joe Ashland 2:13 1/4, the white pacer campaigned by Thad Miller of Jeffersonville, has won a number of races and as he was timed in 2:10 1/2 on a half-mile track, he should be one of the best eligibles for his class next year. Fred Miller 2:24 1/4, a trotter from the same stable, showed ed surprisingly and was timed in 2:16.

Kate McKinney 2:13 1/4, Dan C. 2:19 1/4, Dexter McKinney 2:12 1/4, Lulu McKinney (2) 2:31, and Fox M. 2:15 1/4, were all pacers of fair caliber. The first named has won a number of races and still remains eligible to the 2:18 classes under application of the "no record" rule.

The two-year-old filly Baroness (2) 2:24 1/4, holds the center of the stage among the trotters, as she not only won the coveted "Billings" purse of $1,000 value at the Ohio State fair, but she showed that she was a filly of extraordinary racing ability and possessed pretensions of real class. Leola McKinney 2:19 1/4, Dr. McKinney 2:29 1/4, Hub Holliday 2:18 1/4, Grit McKinney 2:24 1/4, Pullis 2:24 1/4, Mazda 2:24 1/4, Hortense Bell, Rose Bud, Middle's Mate, McKinney A. C. 2:18 1/4, Bonnie Dotte 2:16 1/4, Alice Marmore and several others have evidenced capabilities of winning.

McKinney A. C. deserves special mention as he has been regarded as a useless racing proposition in four or five years of training, but last winter C. E. Mark of this city, became his owner for a song. He trained sound and demonstrated at the races he was a genuine racehorse, defeating the best of his division. From the point of number of races won he tops the list of Fayette county products.

Of the former Fayette owned or bred products, Royal Cadet 2:13 1/4, a trotter by Vice Commodore 2:11, and Florence McKinney 2:08 1/4, a pacer by Wallace McKinney 2:26 1/4, both of which are members of Oscar Vallery's string of campaigners, are the foremost. They are regarded among the best racing on the smaller tracks. Florence McKinney defeated the sensational Single G. (4) 2:07 1/4 in a race at Hamilton a few weeks ago, pacing three heats in 2:08 1/4, 2:08 1/4 and 2:08 1/4—a record Jane Bond (3) 2:27 1/4 is another hailing from Fayette that has made an impression on Pennsylvania racegoers.

Several others owned here and others formerly owned here might be mentioned that have done things worthy of note, but it would take volumes to comment on the commendable things performed by the aristocratic equines that have seen the first light of day in Ohio's foremost county in this particular line.

MUSICAL MOVIES ATTRACT SCORES

Scores of Washington movie patrons were given a treat quite out of the ordinary at the Wonderland theater this afternoon in the way of musical motion pictures and it goes without saying that this popular photoplay house will be packed at tonight's performances.

The novelty is staged by the Ren-fax Musical Motion Picture Company and is one of the most unique and pleasing features ever produced here in connection with picture-play entertainments. The pictures themselves are of the vaudeville and musical comedy order, and are accompanied by real music and vocal rendition produced simultaneously with the action of the play or skit by delicately attuned instrument so constructed that it is impossible to commit a fault.

The innovation has been well received in many Ohio cities and has excited no little press comment. The invention is the product of W. E. Tabor. The faultless synchronization of sound and action is gained through an ingenious device which is the product of years of close and constant study and has met with the approbation of hundreds of critical auditors. The effect is gained through a singing machine by the use of compressed air, so the exhibitors explain, passing through cotton throated tubes, which give unusual power to the voice and a clearness that makes its every syllable understood in all parts of the house.

The machine works in connection with the picture machine and discord is in this way rendered impossible.

C., October 19.—The need of more and better rural schools in Ohio is made manifest by conditions revealed in a recent census report showing the percentage of illiterates among the native white farming class of this state. WIT IN HISTORY.

A Brief Address and a Pithy Reply That Won With Royalty.

Frederick the Great once granted a hearing to a subject on condition that he should cut his remarks very short. "Let him say but two words," said the monarch.

"Very well," agreed the subject, and on entering the presence of Frederick he held out a petition and uttered but the two words:

"Sire, sign."

The subject won his request.

King Henry VIII. wished to commission a nobleman of his court to visit Francis I.

It was at a moment when international relations were extremely shaky, and the courtier showed no particular desire to absent himself from his home and country on so dangerous a mission.

"Do not be afraid," said King Henry. "If you lose your life in my service I will avenge you a hundredfold. I will take off the heads of all the Frenchmen in my power."

"Thank your majesty; your majesty is most gracious," said the courtier, "but of all those heads which you take off there may not be one which will fit on my shoulders."

The witty reply resulted in the courtier being excused from his dangerous mission.

GEOGRAPHICAL PUZZLES.

Where Were Ultima Thule and the Lost Atlantis Located?

A most puzzling geographic mystery has come down from ancient times. This is the old question as to the identity of Ultima Thule. It was about 400 B. C. that Pytheas, a citizen of Massilia, sailed on his famous voyage. He discovered Albion and then continued farther north until he reached a spot which he named Ultima Thule. What this country was has never been determined. It may have been Shetland or Norway or Iceland.

Another ancient puzzle is that of Atlantis. It is commonly believed nowadays that this vanished continent did once actually lie beyond the pillars of Hercules, and there are theories unending concerning it. Some regard the Canary islands as fragments remains of it, others think that the supposedly lost land was really America; but, in considering these speculations, it is well to bear in mind the fact that the first mention of the country was made by Plato, and many scholars are sure that the philosopher merely indulged in an imaginative flight. The solitary evidence that Atlantis ever existed is his reference to it.—Chicago Herald.

PAID TO GET THE GOODS.

Consequently He Felt That They Were His by Right.

A claim once made on the explorer Cameron in the neighborhood of Gaboon, Africa, shows the weirdly peculiar workings of the native African's mind. Some of Cameron's possessions proved unduly attractive to a native, and he determined on transferring the ownership to himself. He accordingly paid another native $200 to procure for him the coveted goods.

The assistant took the money and did his best to earn it, but Mr. Cameron had perversely looked up the very articles that the fellow's employer had set his heart upon. The man could not carry out his bargain, and neither did he feel that he could part with the money. Therefore he ran off with it.

What more logical than that the man who was the loser by $200 should expect the explorer to make the loss good? This he assuredly did expect.

He went to Mr. Cameron and told him the story, demanding in the first place the $200 which he (Cameron) by locking up his goods had compelled the complainant to lose and, secondly, the actual price of the goods themselves, which but for these arbitrary measures would now have been in his possession. It is not stated that his expectations were realized.—London Spectator.

EARLY BANK RUNS.

The Dutch Fleet in the Thames Started One in London in 1669.

The first run of which we have any account in the history of banking occurred in the year 1667. It was quickly stopped. At that date the bankers of England were the goldsmiths, who had a short time before begun to add banking to their ordinary business and had become very numerous and influential.

In 1669 the Dutch fleet sailed up the Thames, blew up the fort at Sheerness, set fire to Chatham and burned some ships of the line. This created the greatest consternation in London, especially among those who had intrusted their money to the bankers, for it was known that the latter had advanced large sums to the king for public purposes, and it was rumored that now the king would not be able to pay the money. To quell the panic a royal proclamation was issued to the effect that payments by the exchequer to the bankers would be made, as usual.

In 1671 there was another run on the London banks, when Charles II. shut up the exchequer and refused to pay the bankers either principal or interest of the money which they had advanced. On this occasion many of the banks and their customers were ruined.—London Standard.
